RORY CROWLEY OF NICOLAUS NUT COMPANY is publicly advocating for farmers and California agriculture through leadership and media outlets. In December, Rory graduated from the Almond Board of California's Almond Leadership Program and presented on the topic of almond byproducts at the organization's annual Almond Conference in Sacramento, CA. Additionally, look out for Rory in the Chico Enterprise Record, where he is now a 2017 monthly columnist for North State Voices. Rory also wrote an article for The Sacramento Bee earlier this year titled "Congress Can Help Young Farmers Succeed." OVER $2 MILLION IN GRANT FUNDING WAS AWARDED the past few months for applications Morrison & Company submitted on behalf of our clients through the USDA Value Added Producer Grant program, the CDFA Specialty Crop Block Grant Program, and the USDA Risk Management Education Program.

Included among the many successful client awardees was Top O' The Morn Farms, a California family-owned dairy that produces and markets glass-bottled milk, which received $250,000 in Value Added Producer Grant funding to help the dairy expand to a new geographic market. Grant funds will help pay for processing, distribution, sales support, and promotions. Other successful Morrison clients include North Valley Ag Services, which received nearly $100,000 through USDA's Risk Management Agency to train Northern California farmers on Quickbooks and financial benchmarking, and Livermore Valley Winegrowers Association, which received more than $200,000 through California's Specialty Crop Block Grant program to promote and market the region's winegrapes.
